The Hanover Theatre announces new board member

WORCESTER, Mass. (October 20, 2017) The Hanover Theatre for the Performing Arts is pleased to announce the addition of Pamela A. Massad to the theatre's board of directors.

Massad brings more than 30 years of experience as an attorney and currently works for Fletcher Tilton. She is a member of the Worcester and Massachusetts Bar Associations and serves as the vice-chair of Commerce Bank, trustee of Nativity School Worcester, and director of Diamond Auto Group, Gemstone Reality, Pie Co and Table Talk Pies.

"I am honored to be a director of The Hanover Theatre, central Massachusetts' seminal cultural center, as it steps into its second decade," Massad said. "The theatre has changed the face of Main Street, and its reach goes far beyond four walls. In the theatre's robust conservatory, the general public is able to not only enjoy, but also become a part of Broadway-caliber productions, with classes ranging from lighting and makeup to dance and on-stage participation. Simply put, The Hanover Theatre has something wonderful for all."
